Navy Springs Big Surprise by Trouncing Army, 6 to 0

Navy Beats the Army: "Babe" Brown a Hero

Middies' Right Guard Kicks Two Goals from Placement, Giving the Ensigns Their Third Straight Victory Over Ancient Foes.

By C. W. SWAN.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 30.—"Babe" Brown, who hails from Canton, Pa., put that town on the map this afternoon, when in the fourth quarter, with the score a tie, he booted a beautiful goal from placement over the Army posts, giving the Navy the first score, and the third straight victory over the West Point Cadets. Again in the same period "Babe" booted the pigskin over the cross-bar, making the final score stand, Navy, 6; Army, 0.

When not employed kicking goals from the field for the Navy eleven, Brown held down right guard with good results, as it was seldom indeed that a gray-jerseyed warrior plunged through him. Brown tried four goals, two of them missing their objective points by a hair. His first attempt was carried wide by the wind, while his second try passed under the cross-bar, and the groans of the Midshipmen.

Navy Outplays Army.

The Midshipmen outplayed their rivals throughout the game, Capt. Hodges, Leonard, and Gilchrist being the chief factors in the Navy victory. The Navy ends where down on punts before the ball had landed, while on the defense but few gains were made around the flanks. The Army eleven appeared to wilt after Brown had kicked the first goal, as a punt was fumbled on the Cadets' 20-yard line, and recovered by Gilchrist. This put the Midshipmen within scoring distance again, and Hodges lost no time running the ball out in front of the goal posts. With the Army forwards charging in on him from all sides, Gilchrist calmly caught the ball on a perfect pass from Perry, and with the Middle end pointing the pigskin on the 25-yard line, "Babe" Brown caught it square in the center and it sailed clean as a whistle over the bar for the second score of the contest. "This took the heart out of the future generals, and the Midshipmen paraded the remainder of the game, which lasted but two minutes.

STATEMENTS OF CAPTAINS.

By CAPT. HODGES, NAVY.

The Navy team was the game by playing better football. Leonard played one of the best games I have ever seen, while his kicking was wonderful. Gilchrist is another who played a great game, while too much cannot be said about "Babe" Brown, who was the game for us. Brown kicked us to victory. I am proud of him.

By CAPT. DEVORE, ARMY.

The Navy's kicking beat us. We held our own in kicking the first, but it was in the kicking department that we lost. The Army team did not play its best game, but I have no excuse to offer. Navy won fair and square.

Leonard's Wonderful Punting.
Leonard's wonderful punting had a great deal to do with the Navy victory. The speedy little Naval Academy back punted far and high, with the result that Gilchrist and Ingram downed the West Point backs as soon as the ball was caught.

The first half was stubbornly fought. First the Midshipmen would rush the ball to the Cadets' 20-yard line and then lose it, and then the West Pointers would carry the ball up the field. Both teams attempted a field goal in the first half. Keyes missed one from the 20-yard line, while Howe missed a field goal from the 25-yard line.

The West Pointers lost a great chance to score in the second quarter. The ball was on the Midshipmen's 20-yard line and Leonard dropped back to punt. Devore broke through and blocked the punt and Markoe grabbed the ball and started for the Navy goal. Leonard, who had punted the ball, downed Markoe on the Midshipmen's 10-yard line. Had the field been dry Markoe would have scored a touchdown.

Howard Deserves Credit.
"Doug" Howard, the Midshipmen's head coach, was the happiest man in Quaker town after the struggle. Howard gave flood orders between the halves to attempt a field goal whenever possible. As it turned out that was what won the game for the Midshipmen.

It was a perfect football day. The air was warm, while the sun was shining brightly on the yellow and blue of the Midshipmen and the gray and black of the Cadets. When the final whistle denoting the end of the game was heard the two battalions of midshipmen made a wild dash for the center of the field, where their "mash" dance was started. In and out the long line of gold and blue cadets swept around the field until the entire corps was massed in front of the West Point stand. There the time-honored Continued on Page Four.

TRIO OF GEORGETOWN MEN SELECTED FOR HERALD'S SOUTH ATLANTIC TEAM

HARRY COSTELLO,
Quarter Back.

MORIARITY,

Five Georgetown Men Given Positions on Herald's All-South Atlantic Football Team

Harry Costello Named for Quarter Back and Captain—Virginia Has Two Stars.

By WILLIAM FERT.

Georgetown for the third successive season leads the football teams of the South Atlantic section with Washington and Lee and Virginia following in the order named.

The Hilltoppers' victory over V. P. I. Thanksgiving Day entitles the wearers of the Blue and Gray to first place honors, of this there can be no question raised. Scapes from Virginia, V. P. I., Washington and Lee, Carolina A. & M., and the University of North Carolina dangle from Georgetown's belt, every victim an easy one, with the lone exception of Virginia.

Individually Georgetown was much stronger than last fall, but the team as a whole was weaker. Messrs. Gargan and Dennis, the Hilltop coaches, worked hard and faithfully, but were unable to produce such a smashing, smooth running machine as the eleven coached by Fred Neilson in 1911.

In spite of this the players knew football from the ground up, and were able to win every game on their schedule with the exception of the Indian contest, and after all results are what count.

Ends and half backs in this section were plentiful and of high class. In fact, each South Atlantic eleven possessed one or more backs who stood out prominently in nearly every game. It seems really too bad that Georgetown and St. Johns could not have met during the past fall, in order to have gotten a better line on the individual merits of the Annapolis boys. St. Johns has beaten decisively such teams as Washington College, Western Maryland,

HERALD'S ALL-SOUTH ATLANTIC TEAM.

Ends—Foltz, Galland; Derby, Georgetown.
Tackles—Barrus, V. P. I.; Miller, Washington and Lee.
Guards—Moriarity, Georgetown; Carter, Virginia.
Center—Wood, Virginia.
Quarter Back—Costello, Georgetown.
Half Backs—Dunn, Georgetown; Todd, Virginia.
Full Back—Moore, Virginia Military Institute.

and the Maryland Aggies, and in Melton and Wilson possessed two corking good backs.

For ends the writer names Foltz, of Galland, and Derby, of Georgetown, placing this pair over Barrus and Dummally, of Georgetown; Foltz, of Virginia, and Francis, of Washington and Lee.

Foltz, of Galland, developed early into one of the best defensive end players in Virginia's line all season, and for a full back was the real tower of strength in the forward pass than any man in this section. In each game played by Galland Foltz has been the bright and shining light. He has scored more than half the points credited to the wearers of the buff and blue and gains around his end of the line have been few and far between.

Derby, of Georgetown, although he was barred from taking part in the Virginia and V. P. I. games, deserves a place on the All-South Atlantic team. He is easily a better man than Finley, of Virginia, or any man Washington and Lee and V. P. I. have shown.

Dave White, of Georgetown, and Miles, of Washington and Lee, are the tackles, both of whom stand out head and shoulders over any of the others. White was called on to play in the Virginia game, for a light man, played consistent football all season. Aggressiveness counts more than anything else for a man holding down this job, and aggressiveness was White's middle name. Ritch, of Georgetown, was a good man, as was season at this position would have demonstrated this fact.

Miles, of Washington and Lee, is wonderfully fast on his feet for a big chap, a strong defensive player and a fighter from the drop of the last. Capt. Jack Moriarity, of Georgetown, would have been selected instead of Miles had Jack been in good physical condition this season and able to put up his best game, injuries handicapped Moriarity.

Moriarity a Star.

For guards, Georgetown possessed the real star in Moriarity, whose work was sensational, although not spectacular, throughout the entire season. Moriarity outplayed every opponent he faced, and it was due to his aggressiveness more than anything else that Georgetown was able to defeat Virginia.

Carter, the Virginia behemoth, is paired with Moriarity, and the big boy from Charlottesville deserves the place. Carter has been the real tower of strength in Virginia's line all season, and for a big man is wonderfully active on his feet.

Not since the days of Billy Gloth has this section seen a center of Joe Wood's caliber, and Virginia claims him. Wood, for a light man, played consistent football all season. Aggressiveness counts more than anything else for a man holding down this job, and aggressiveness was Wood's middle name. Ritch, of Georgetown, was a good man, as was Hilltoppers Easily Claim Championship Title. Wealth of Material to Pick From.

Moore, of Washington and Lee, but neither showed the class characteristic of Wood's playing.

For quarter back and captain there can be but one choice, Harry Costello, of Georgetown, one of the greatest football players ever developed in this section of the country. Costello is a versatile player; there is nothing he cannot do. In general, drop kicking, punting, the ball, or broken field running, he has no equal among the South Atlantic backs. There is only one Costello. His record is too well known among followers of football here for further comment.

For the remainder of the back field the writer likes Todd, Dunn, and Moore, representing Virginia, Georgetown, and V. P. I., respectively, and in naming this trio considerable opposition is likely to be encountered from other football writers essaying the task of picking an All-South Atlantic eleven.

Speedy Back Field Named.

In selecting this trio, speed and weight are combined. Todd and Moore can both skirt the ends probably better than any other backs among the South Atlantic colleges, while Dunn usually gains the necessary yards on a line plunge. It would be hard to improve upon this back field—Costello, Todd, Dunn, and Moore.

With the exception of Galland the writer has ignored the so-called small colleges of the South Atlantic section, but this group, St. John's, excellent. The Maryland Aggies possessed in Contry Morris a fine half back, but with the exception of Hoffecker and Shipley the Farmers were inexperienced. Washington College looked like a joke team against Georgetown, as did Mount St. Mary's, while Catholic University and Johns Hopkins both experienced disastrous seasons.

POCKET BILLIARDS.

Interesting Tourney Planned at the Royal Palms.

A pocket billiard tournament open to the best local players will be played at the Royal Palms Park, December 8, 9, 10, 11. There will be three cash prizes: First, $25; second, $15; third, $10. Games will be 90 points on a regulation table and will be played according to the latest championship rules.

The following players have entered: Frank Swan, M. Rosenthal, C. E. Johnson, and George Kelsner. Two other players will be chosen from a large number of applicants. No admission will be charged to see the games, the object being to promote the game and develop players for future important games.

ENGINEERS SEE GAME.

Washington Eleven Wins Army-Navy Contest.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 30.—The United States Engineers Corps football team, of Washington, D. C., witnessed the game this afternoon on Franklin Field, between the Army and the Navy, which the lads from Annapolis won by a 6 to 0 score.

John Blair, who is captain of the Engineers team, stated before leaving Washington that although an Army team was beaten by the Navy, the Engineers would not be beaten by the Virginians, who play the Engineers tomorrow. This game has created quite a little interest in the District, and Blair stated that if the Engineers are victorious, they will take on the U. S. and Indian eleven.

CURTAIN FALLS ON RACING IN EAST FOR 1912

Not a Prosperous Year and Some Horse Owners are in the Doldrums.

MOST STABLES TO TAKE A REST

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 30.—Blind down the curtain. The horse racing play is over for the year 1912. It has not been a very successful production, but nevertheless a little something for the lovers of the horse.

The performers have not been that class except in one or two instances. It has been what the theatrical folk term an "off season." To-day will see the last of the thoroughbred in the section of the country until next spring, and when the "all right" sign has been hung up after the last race at Norfolk this afternoon there will be many a horse owner who will look over his stock and wonder how he is going to provide the fodder for the winter, or at least until the proposed meeting begins at Charleston next January.

It is safe to say that 75 per cent of the horsemen are practically broke, for few could live on the meager purses that have been offered during the year. Those who have sufficient funds to winter quietly are fortunate, for they can give their horses a much-needed rest and come back again in the spring with bright prospects.

Everybody is concerned about racing in New York next year. There are all sorts of rumors and prophecies. The situation is a trifle better than it was this time last year, as the courts came to the rescue in the Shuman case. Summaries: When judges at the Jamestown race track to-day refused to disqualify His Majesty for bumping Labors, in the Exchange Stakes, they made a very unpopular decision, and the crowd gave vent to their feelings by a howl of disapproval.

Joekey Ambrose, who rode Labors, charged that Joekey Turner, His Majesty's jockey, fouled his horse at the last quarter pole. The foul was so flagrant that two-thirds of the spectators expected the judges would disqualify His Majesty and give the race to the favorite, His Majesty. Labors finished five lengths ahead of Labors, who got second money.
